The Eagle

A grainy, black and white aerial photograph of a town. The town is densely packed with buildings, mostly single-story houses with dark roofs. Interspersed among the buildings are several larger, multi-story industrial or institutional structures, some with multiple gabled roofs. The town is surrounded by a dense forest of trees, and a winding road or riverbed cuts through the lower center of the town. The overall image has a high-contrast, almost monochromatic appearance.

We Love Westmar

We love Westmar because of the fellowship we find on the campus. It is here that we relax around the dining hall tables, sit on the steps of Wernli Hall to chat with that special friend before classes start, or heat a can of soup to start a bull session at the end of the day. The fellowship of Christian friends as well as the opportunities for meditation and prayer is a priceless gift at Westmar. From the exuberant cheers at a football game to the silent prayers in the Upper Room, Westmar is good.

We love Westmar because we are considered individuals with personal problems and abilities. We are given the opportunity to practice our profession before we are out on our own. While we struggle over lesson plans, drop acid on our trousers, and blacken our thumb nail with a hammer in the shop, we are beginning our career in this world of work. Perhaps even more than that, we are becoming more effective citizens in our nation by striving toward a more perfect student government with Christian principles.

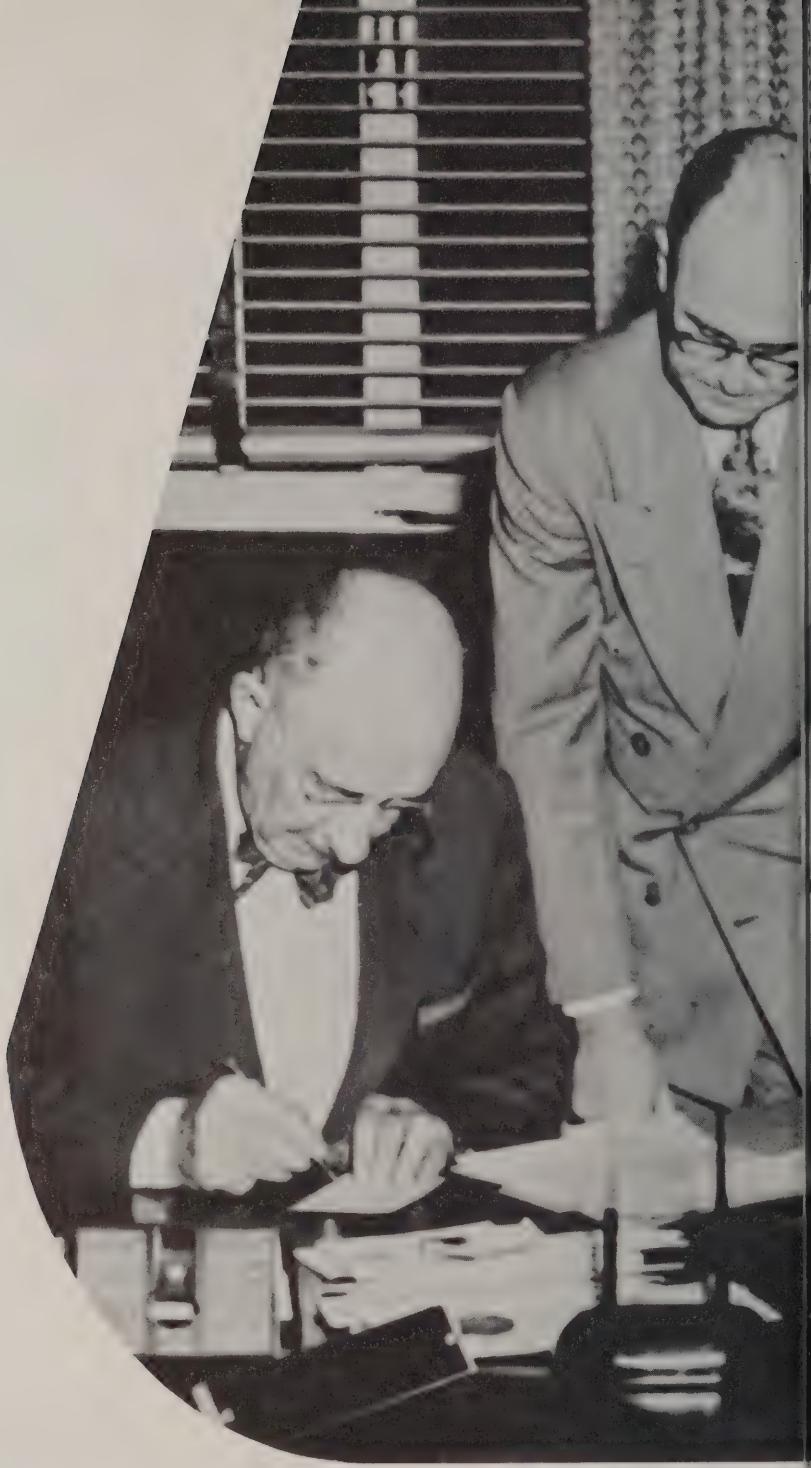

We love Westmar because it presents us with opportunities to advance our cultural training. Concerts, book reviews, and coffee hours play a part in preparing us for our life in this contemporary universe. It is here at Westmar that we are given the privilege of seeking the beauty in the quietness of booklore or in the triumphant voices of the choir as the Halleluiah chorus is sung.

Westmar is a busy school with studies and organizations, but somehow we find time to go ice skating on the frozen lake, or stroll about the campus in the twilight of early spring, or race to the tennis courts so we will be able to play just one more game before the sun goes down. It is the memories of these little things which make our thoughts of Westmar happy. We love Westmar because this is our college.

Cheerleaders

We have been exceptionally proud of our cheerleaders this year. It was only a few days from the time they were elected until our first home football game, but from the very first, students could be heard remarking, "Boy, do we have good cheerleaders!" "Look at that Kramer jump." "How can anybody be as limber as Sellers?"

They have been faithful at every game as well as adding new yells to our collection. The pep chapels were well planned this year with lots of clever stunts.

Most of all we want to congratulate them on sponsoring a basketball game between two outside teams to earn money for their new and very attractive outfits. Three cheers to the Westmar Cheerleaders!

Intramurals have met a definite need on this campus. Basketball, volleyball, softball, and other sports offer the students a chance to relax from their work as well as learn cooperation and skill. Anyone who cares about sports may go out for intramurals. Whether he excels or not is not the important thing because sportsmanship lasts much longer than winning the round robin in badminton.

Religion

Rev. Kenneth I. Clawson, our pastor and friend.

In Service

Westmar College has tried to keep her religion practical by helping those less fortunate than we are. Each Sunday afternoon students are given the opportunity to witness by going to the prison at Sioux City or sing with the Student Volunteer group who go to the old people's home, the hospital, and other shut-ins. Each Tuesday evening a group of students go to the Sioux City mission to bring the Gospel to people of the street.

The loveliness of Westmar campus can be seen at any time of the year. Autumn brings brightly colored leaves which float about us as we walk from class to class. The elm leaves clutter into a pile so that even dignified college students become children again and shuffle through them to hear the rustle. The nippy weather centers our thoughts to daring football games and weiner roasts.

Winter brings her cold winds but beautiful snow to cover the campus with a clean white snowy sheet just as a mother tucks the sleepy little boy in bed at night. As students look out of their window the morning after a snow they see a world uncluttered with footprints, but soon marks of shoes will be seen changing it into a human world.

Then, spring pops out with budding leaves and tiny blades of grass to transform the campus into a world of green. It is the time of soft ball and tennis and hand-in-hand couples strolling across the campus a little slower than usual.

The beauty of nature is continually changing on the campus of Westmar, but there seems to remain one permanent and spiritual beauty which we pray will never leave our campus. This is the beauty of friendliness. A cheery "hi" from a fellow classmate alters the gloomy day into one of peace and contentment. Although the students of Westmar cannot stop the process of nature and make the blossom of a flower stay the year around, they are able to keep Westmar College happy and friendly.
